COMING TO KNOW

an artist investigates her own unusual anatomy

Join Artist Laura Ferguson, Artist-in-Residence Ted Meyer, and
Mark J. Spoonamore, MD
Associate Professor of Clinical Orthopedic Surgery
In a Zoom Conversation

Laura Ferguson has made her own body the subject of her art, finding beauty in a curving spine and exploring the connections between pain, consciousness, and creativity. She grounds her work in anatomical reality, drawing from skeletons and cadaver dissections in the Anatomy Lab and from medical images of her own body.

"Coming to Know" continues the KSOM Humanities, Ethics, Art, and Law (HEAL) Program's mission to align the work of patients/artists with the core medical school curriculum, and to foster enhanced understanding between patients and future health care professionals.
